Stretcher For Rescue Squad

One of the newest presentations to The Appomattox County Rescue Squad is this orthopedic stretcher, presented by Cecil Deaner, (far left) president of Camp 71, Woodmen of the World, to 2nd Lt., Sr., Jimmy Rogers and Squad president Ray Noble. The stretcher enables Squad personnel to life and transport persons with greater safety than conventional stretchers. It is particularly valuable for persons with head, neck or back injuries.

VDF Offers Free Seedlings

Landowners in Appomattox and adjacent counties can get free pine seedlings to match one-for-one the number they buy from the Virginia Division of Forestry. Each member of a youth group which has a forestry project can get up to 1,000 free pine seedlings without having to buy any. The offer is being made by Westvaco Corporation, cooperating with the Division of Forestry in a continuing effort to increase the planting of old fields and cutover woodlots in the county.

The Westvaco seedling program, begun in Virginia in 1951, has made possible the distribution of nearly 32 million free seedlings throughout the state.

Orders for seedlings may be placed with the District Forester of the Division of Forestry, with any Westvaco Forester or at Westvaco woodyards. Information on the program also may be obtained from the county officers of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and the Virginia Extension Service.

Conservation leaders are encouraging landowners to again take advantage of this opportunity to get free pine seedlings for planting idle lands.

Smith and the Director of Instruction, Eugene W. Peyton presented late figures on the official capacity of each of the county schools, present attendance and anticipated enrollment next year.

Appomattox County High School, with a capacity of 513 now has 634 pupils and expects 701 for the '71-'72 term. It was suggested that additional rooms of the dormitory will have to be used next year because of the lack of space.

Supt. Smith said that part of the reason for over-crowding is that the schools are able to keep pupils in school longer. Boys and girls who used to drop

Reviews Health Dept. Budget

Appomattox County Supervisors adopted an ordinance Friday morning requiring a permit for public entertainments in the county of any kind held outside existing auditoriums or areas and to which admission is to be charged. The ordinance applies to entertainments to be conducted for a period of more than eight hours in any day.

The permit to hold such entertainments involves a fee of $1,000 a day plus a bond of $5,000 conditional to the clearing of the premises and various other health and medical provisions.

No one appeared to speak for or against the ordinance.

In other action Friday supervisors reviewed a proposed budget for the Appomattox County Health Department of $28,552. Of this amount, local funds will total $8,524. Making the presentation was Dr. J. B. Kinlaw, Health Director accompanied by his assistant C. Fred Keesee.

The fiscal year begins in July, 1971 and was presented as information for the board. Included in the proposals for health department activities is the position of "Information Officer". Dr. Kinlaw explained that an information officer would serve Appomattox County, Bedford County, Campbell County, City of Lynchburg (Dr. Kinlaw's jurisdiction as health director.)

The Appomattox supervisors consulted at length with Dr. Kinlaw on the duties of such an employee and said that they would approve the addition only if the other counties are in favor of it, that they are not in favor of adding the additional person but would not stand in the way of the county health department.

Supervisors will recommend the names of three men to act as assessors in the 1971 reassessment of county property. Recommendations are being sent to Circuit Court Judge G. F. Abbitt, Jr., listing John S. Grinels, James A. Williams, and E. W. Carson.

Southside supervisor, John C. Cole made a motion to request Judge G. F. Abbitt, Jr. to appoint a commission to redistrict the county. At present there are three magisterial districts and the board is of the opinion that either redistricting or rearranging magisterial districts is necessary in order to achieve equal representation.

The board heard a report from Murrell Ferguson, secretary of the electoral board, to prepare for compliance with state statute in the appointment of a central registrar for the county. The report was given by Southside supervisor John C. Cole. The registrar will assume duties effective March 1.

Supervisors agreed that office space for the central registrar (now on the third floor of the court house building) should be found at a site more convenient to voters.

The central registrar will be in charge of all voter registration cards. The duties of the registrar will be those formerly assumed by the ten precinct registrars.

Supervisors agreed to keep the usual meeting time and place for the coming year, the second Friday of each month at 9 a.m.

The board approved a request from D. B. Chandler to cover the loss of eight chickens because of a stray dog. Such payments come from dog license fees collected by the county and are subject to investigation and approval by the dog warden.
